ANNUAL REPORT OF HAZARDOUS WASTE EXPORTS FOR 2015

Chaparral Steel Midlothian, LP operates two electric arc furnaces to produce billets from steel scrap, and three rolling mills to produce bar and structural products from steel billets at its Midlothian, Texas steel mill. Baghouses collect the electric arc furnace fumes and dust (EPA Hazardous Waste Code K061). A portion of that dust is recycled on-site in the electric arc furnaces and is no longer a "solid waste," because it is returned to the original process from which it was generated for recycling, in accordance with 40 CFR 261.2(e)(1)(iii). This material totaled 5,424.56 tons in 2015. The rest of the dust is subsequently shipped off-site for high temperature recovery (HTMR, the primary option) or sent off-site for landfill disposal (the last resort). Off-site shipments for HTMR recycling were forced to send a total of 693.40 tons of dust off-site for landfill disposal in 2015. Overall, we recycled 97.5% of the dust collected. Chaparral Steel actively pursues beneficial uses for all waste generated at Alabama in 2015. Due to restrictions on availability of cars in our rail fleet early in the year, we were composed of 21,313.25 tons exported to Zinc Nacional in Mexico and 818.10 tons sent to SDR in 2015.
